

Fineman Krekstein & Harris's tax attorneys represent clients before judicial and administrative tribunals in connection with local, state and federal tax controversies. Our attorneys regularly interact with the Internal Revenue Service at audit, appeals office and trial on behalf of individuals, businesses and trust and estates. We also provide representation in criminal tax investigations.

Some of our tax attorneys have worked for the Internal Revenue Service and others have advanced degrees in taxation. These skills provide the know-how to achieve excellent results in handling tax controversies.
